A Message from Our Pastor:

Dear Parishioners,

Today let's look at how we are to receive and prepare to receive Our Lord in Holy Communion. The first thing we should take note of is the manner by which we receive should be reflecting an interior disposition of reverence, love, awe, faith, and devotion. Currently, in the Ordinary Form of the Mass, the Church allows the faithful to receive the sacred host on either on the tongue or in their own hands. Either of these may be done while standing or kneeling. Yes, I know it is not seen, but one could kneel at the rail and still receive in the hand, again, this is when the Mass is celebrated in the Ordinary Form. (What is known as the Traditional Latin Mass is also called the Extraordinary Form) I'll stop here for a just a moment to once again encourage you, if you are able, to try receiving while kneeling. It is a most beautiful expression of devotion and faith and I think you may find it leads to the interior dispositions of love and devotion quite readily. Kneeling is well-established as an important expression of adoration of the Eucharist—and so the Church requires us to kneel (if we are able bodied) during the Eucharistic Prayer and for the "Behold the Lamb of God..." As St. Augustine, taught: "No one eats that flesh without first adoring it; we should sin were we not to adore it." Cardinal Robert Sarah (Prefect Emeritus of the Congregation for Divine Worship) reminds us of how Pope St. John Paul II gave us an amazing example of this, as he writes: "I simply ask you to recall that at the end of his life of service, a man in a body wracked with sickness, St. John Paul II could never sit in the presence of the Blessed Sacrament. He forced his broken body to kneel. He needed the help of others to bend his knees, and again to stand. What more profound testimony could he give to the reverence due to the Blessed Sacrament than this, right up until his very last days."

If one is receiving standing, either on the tongue or in the hand, then before approaching the priest, deacon, or minister of Communion, one should bow the head, slightly from just below the chest, meaning a bow of the head and shoulders as well, or even from the waist, as a more profound bow would be most appropriate here. One could, if able, genuflect, though with that one needs to be aware of those around and be careful not to trip anyone up.

If receiving on the tongue, which is the normative practice in the Church for most of our history, after responding "Amen" to "The Body of Christ", one simply opens the mouth, while slightly tilting the head back, the tongue need not be extended outside and over the bottom lip, but rather makes a gentle cushion, just on top of the inner edge of our bottom lip, on which to welcome Our Eucharistic Lord.

If Communion is received in the hand, the hands should first of all be clean. If one is right handed the left hand should rest upon the right. The host will then be laid in the palm of the left hand and then taken by the right hand to the mouth. If one is left-handed this is reversed. This is done before moving along. There is no need to step to the side before placing the Sacred Host into your mouth. This should be done in front the priest, deacon or minister.

It is not appropriate to reach out with the fingers and take the host from the person distributing.

Never receive Holy Communion in the hand when your hands are impeded; e.g., carrying anything else in one or another hand or arm, for example a cane or some other walking-assistance device, carrying a child in your arms, carrying a purse, have a tissue or handkerchief in your hand, have a cast on your hand, etc. Never receive Holy Communion by extending only one hand. Never reach and grab the Host. If your hands are not clean, or impeded in any way, you need to receive on the tongue.

For those who choose to receive in one's own hands, you have a grave responsibility to ensure that no particle of the Sacred Host remains in your hands or on your fingers or falls to the floor. After distributing Holy Communion, the priest, deacon and ministers are to purify their fingers appropriately at the altar or credence table. Likewise those receiving the hand must take great care to ensure no particles remain unconsumed in the hands.

When Pope St. Paul VI gave permission for Communion to be received in their own hands by the faithful, this is what the Vatican said:

— Above all it is necessary to have the introduction of the rite preceded by an effective catechesis, so that the people will clearly understand the meaning of receiving in the hand and will practice it with the reverence owed to the sacrament. This catechesis must succeed in excluding any suggestion that in the mind of the Church there is a lessening of faith in the eucharistic presence and in excluding as well any danger or hint of danger of profaning the Eucharist.

The option offered to the faithful of receiving the Eucharistic bread in their hand and putting it into their own mouth must not turn out to be the occasion for regarding it as ordinary bread or as just another religious article. Instead this option must increase in them a consciousness of the dignity of the members of Christ's Mystical Body, into which they are incorporated by baptism and by the grace of the Eucharist. It must also increase their faith in the sublime reality of the Lord's body and blood, which they touch with their hand. Their attitude of reverence must measure up to what they are doing. Care must be taken not to allow particles of the eucharistic bread to fall or be scattered. Care must also be taken that the communicants have clean hands and that their comportment is becoming and in keeping with the practices of the different peoples. —

CONTINUED

If choosing to receive Communion in the hand, please consider for yourself if you are truly mindful of Who it is you are receiving and if your own attitude of reverence measures up what is taking place.

In terms of our interior and spiritual preparation for Holy Communion, it is helpful for one to pray attentively at the Holy Mass, listening to the Word of God, being aware that the Sacrifice of Calvary has been made present and placing one's own offerings spiritually on the altar to be offered to the Father by the priest with the Body and Blood of Jesus. It is also good to make an act of faith in Our Lord's real and true presence and to ask for the many graces and fruits that we can receive in Holy Communion.

It is also important to examine one's conscience to be sure one is morally in the state of grace, that means not being aware of having committed any sins of grave matter since one's last confession. Reception only after examining oneself is a prerequisite for worthy reception, otherwise Communion has the opposite from the desired effect of union with our Lord. This is why, out of respect for Christ and our own good, the Church obliges us to be in the state of grace when we receive. In 1 Cor. 11:27-29, St Paul says: Therefore whoever eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Lord unworthily will have to answer for the body and blood of the Lord. A person should examine himself, and so eat the bread and drink the cup. For anyone who eats and drinks without discerning the body, eats and drinks judgment on himself.

Church Law states: 1. A member of the Christian faithful is obliged to confess in kind and in number all serious sins committed after baptism...of which one is conscious after diligent examination of conscience. 2. It is to be recommended to the Christian faithful that venial sins also be confessed.

Regular use of the Sacrament of Penance is the best way to prepare for the reception of the Lord in Holy Communion. Confession assists us with the graces proper to that sacrament in its own right. Meaning that sacrament, like each and every sacrament, imparts grace that is unique to it. Yet, the sacrament of Penance is also the sacrament that prepares us best for Holy Communion and also renews the graces we received in Baptism, Confirmation and the sacraments that are vocational, namely Holy Orders and Matrimony.

Peace- Father Adam
